Israel killed Gazan Hamas leader Ismail Haniyeh.¹ Planted an explosive in Haniyeh's room while he was in Iran. Earlier, they took out Hezbollah's head—Fu'ad Shukr (Shu'-ker).² ³ What do you think about targeting leaders of these terrorist groups?

The problem with name-calling!

Did Trump bully Rachel Scott at the notorious NABJ (National Association of Black Journalists) annual convention this past week?

It's been a while since I've offered a vax update — let's discuss the recent Czech Mate!

While we are talking about medical radicalism—Biden's FDA recommended approval of puberty blockers to minors in spite of known risks: but, no worries, they'll warn you the label!

Here are a couple of touch-and-go topics that I'll address more fully on Saturday during Brain Massage® LIVE at about 8 PM.

entice and fund the illegal invasion of our border. She used the card but left her receipt. The teller noticed the balance on the EBT taxpayer-provided benefit was over 13,000 dollars in food stamps and over $4k in cash! If we have this sort of money to hire votes for the Democrats, maybe we should divert it to helping our Vets or other homeless Americans.

And while we are talking about the Border Czar Harris invasion, take a look at this video showing hundreds of Somali military-aged men lined up at the Pompano Beach, FL DMV to get a driver's license, where that's all you need to vote.⁴

Someone visited an apartment complex in Georgia that is used to provide shelter for illegals — 14% of the residents admitted they were registered to vote.⁵

There is a memo from Susan Rice that says we've got to figure out how we're going to meet the challenge of teaching these illegal immigrants to vote. We don't know whether they will make them citizens first or not. But Susan Rice is heading up the operation of tasking our Federal agencies to actually get votes from illegal immigrants. Check this out. Mornings with Maria Bartiromo, see this link.⁶

I think I showed you the cell phone data that suggests a connection between the Trump shooter and the FBI. From Heritage Foundation.⁷ Check it out!

Alex tells us the Secret Service Head was caught ordering Butler, PA, to stand down. (You have to endure some commercials, and you might find the products helpful. Be patient; the news is worth the wait.)⁸ Here is the statement. Each time a President was assassinated, there was a Secret Service Stand Down. That means the President's protection detail was cut back or otherwise compromised. Ronald Roe, the guy most likely responsible for signing off on the security arrangements made for July 13, claims he does not know who cut down the staff. Now we know the shooter was on the roof for I've heard from ten to twenty minutes — and, really, you believe no one communicated with the Secret Service? Really? So, not only did they leave a clear line of site vantage point unprotected, they did not ensure they have communication channels open between Butler police and the Secret Service? No one does a better job of encouraging and fostering conspiracy theories than our government. Remember JFK? Was it set up?

Farmers are under attack in Idaho. Don't make the mistake of thinking it will ever come here! Over half a million acres of farmland are at risk. Hey, BonniePak, you need to get ahead of this! I'll address the touch-and-go topics Saturday night, 8 PM, Rumble, X, LinkedIn, and Facebook. Soon to expand to Spotify—.

It's time for your Brain Massage®!

Earlier, Israel took off Hezbollah's head—Fu'ad Shukr (Shu'-ker).¹⁰

¹¹ What do you think about targeting leaders of these terrorist groups?

Why kill the people oppressed by these leaders into their service? I liked the Reagan response to Khadafi — every dictator in the region got small and quiet. Later, Obama punished him for that, but that's for another time. Trump took out Soleimani.¹² Obama took out that CIA asset named Osama, and very reluctantly, by the way!

Let me know what you think about this!

The problem with name-calling is that, well, there is no other way to call anyone! Hehe! Of course, that's not what we mean, but it does answer an important question about “name-calling.”

Senator John Kennedy was Chastised by Fox Business News anchor Neil Cavuto for calling Kamala a ding-dong.

Why are only the “right” called down on name-calling? Maybe it's the sort of internal discipline we find in almost every organization—like a church. It takes different forms or shapes depending on the group's objectives and values, but it's always about the same thing—protecting the group's integrity. So it is certainly possible Cavuto has Kennedy's best interests at heart when he says, effectively, he does not see how name-calling advances the agenda of the good Senator from Louisiana, John Kennedy. He clearly did not approve of calling Kamala a ding dong.

¹² 997.0.5-Assassination of Qasem Soleimani - Wikipedia https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Assassination_of_Qasem_Soleimani

Kennedy used the expression in its more modern colloquial sense — describing someone who is addle-brained, lacking common sense, and unable to think clearly.

The expression technically describes the noise a doorbell makes or a church bell—Ding, followed by Dong.

Ironically and informally, especially in the UK, the expression describes a noisy argument or fight. For example, “they had a real ding-dong in the middle of the restaurant.” So we might describe the terse exchange between Kennedy and Cavuto as a real ding-dong.

In America, “ding-dong” is slang for one that is stupid or foolish¹³: and its use to identify the distinguishing male part is vulgar.

The source I found for this use is questionable in terms of whether it was prepared by an English-first-language person or someone still working on that skill.

But we all know what it means by the context in which it is used. Clearly, Kennedy intended to dismiss Kamala as a ding-dong, a dingleberry, dinghead, ding-a-ling, dipstick, or a dingbat.

It’s an efficient way to make the point, and it is somewhat adorkable — a person that might be regarded as socially awkward, perhaps not fashionable, but in a way that makes them adorable: that describes Kennedy to a “tee.” He is adorkable!

And Kamala is not! No matter how much lipstick you smear on a pig! Kamala is unlikable.

Nevertheless, we really do need to present the evidence and let the people describe it.

13 997.0.4-Ding-dong - Idioms by The Free Dictionary <https://idioms.thefreedictionary.com/ding-dong>

It's interesting, though, that the left are the ones who started this. You see, you can call someone a Nazi, and that's not "name-calling"?

You say, but hey, Brain Masseur, I've heard you call Kamala a Nazi, and Biden, and Obama—so isn't that Name-Calling? Actually, no! So when is it name-calling, and when is it descriptive?

When the Progressives call you or me a Nazi, all you have to do is say, tell me what specifically I have done or said that justifies calling me a Nazi? If they say book burning, you can have all sorts of fun pointing out that they are the censors. But the fact that Nazi's burned books is not what made them Nazis.

A Nazi uses private businesses to extend its political agenda to control the population, and that's what Progressives do.

A Nazi weaponizes the government against anyone that disagrees with the agenda of the present rulers of the government.

That's what Democrats do.

So, when a term is used to describe someone's behavior or the character revealed in that behavior, it is not name-calling.

You see, in that case, you are not creating an impression about someone you are simply honestly labeling what everyone else can see.

Name-calling, as we understand it, and the way the Demoncrats use it, is an effort to attach labels to someone that make them out to be what they are not, to identify them with characteristics that are actually NOT DESCRIPTIVE of their character or personality. Like Racist, Hater, White Supremacist, and so on.

But to avoid the long and actually distracting work of sorting all that out, just put Harris and her record in front of the people — everyone with sense will think of all the "names" — ding dong, dingbat, and even dangerous, without any help from us.

Now, there is an exception. When the entire media complex calls Kamala the Border Czar — remember last week's show — and suddenly they want to bury that name because it attaches her to the Biden/Harris border failure debacle (remember, when you say “failure” you need to qualify that. Their border policy has certainly failed America and true Americans, but — and remember this — the reason no one is held accountable for their obviously failed policies is because in fact they did not fail. Obama, Biden, and Harris, and throw Hillary in there too, they have done their job to the absolute satisfaction of their masters. Watch the FBI and the DHS — the secret service heads, all of them, watch! No one will be fired! Why would you fire someone for doing a good Job? They did what they were hired to do! Think about it!

Cheattle played along like a good soldier, took one for the team, and, besides that, she bungled her job at her first hearing. She did not handle it well — Ronnie Roe, on the other hand, is about as smooth as Wray is in slithering around the questions with non-answers.

You understand that one of the main reasons government employees who do a horrible job and yet are promoted is because, well, they did not do a horrible job. They did exactly what George Soros hired them to do—I mean, to make the point. You understand. I love talking to smart people!

You don't fire someone for doing their job well — that would make it hard to recruit! You scapegoat anyone whose performance threatens to expose the masters or embarrass them.

Okay, my friends, hold on through the break. I'll be right back!

Segment.02 Hello. Welcome back! I'm Dr. Jerry Scheidbach, pastor at the Lighthouse, your brain masseur, and Paul Revere's lantern lighter, lighting the lamps in the church belfry arch, signaling the enemy is on the march, an enemy that would steal from us our liberty.

I went long on the first segment, but anything we don't get to today, I'll pick up Saturday night, 8 PM on Brain Massage® LIVE.

Melania has some very good instincts, and like a “mother hen” she wants to protect people from the abuse of bullying. And I'm for that.

However, values shaped by sympathy are often distorted and do more harm than good! Let's chat about that a bit!

I received an X-file ostensibly from Malania appealing to the Republicans to embrace her sympathy for Log Cabin Republicans — that's the Queer section of the Republican (Big Tent) Party.

I listened to her spiel carefully — and, you know what, I truly believe she is sincere. She believes they've been bullied and rejected by the normals, or perhaps I should call them the “naturals.” It is instinctual in nature to reject what is an aberration. Becky lately put up a fish tank and placed in it three little catfish; one has one eye, and the other two are “normal.” We notice that the one-eyed cat is more often than not alone. They don't bully it, and the reason for being isolated might have more to do with the fact that that cat has a blind side than it has to do with anything else. When this sort of thing happens, it's usually more about the blindness in the group than in the individual. Just sayin'.

However, we are not talking about a physical anomaly — we are talking about a spiritual perversity, and while I certainly do not encourage bullying anyone, ever, the people's right of free association is also valid—you should not, for example, be forced to company sex traffickers of minors or drug pushers of fentanyl, or heroine — right?

Let me go on record saying what I've said for many, many years. Bullying anyone is uncalled-for behavior.

I don't like watching a man pretend to be a woman and, under cover of that delusion, go into a boxing ring and beat up a woman. It makes me literally sick to my stomach.

I resent liberals weaponizing the government to bully us into accepting unnatural homosexual behavior or the queer lifestyle.

I resent teachers in our public schools bullying Christian kids and intimidating them by mocking their faith in Christ in front of their friends or personally.

I hate bullies who get in your face and scream racist and bigot while they are being racist and bigoted. And I'm tired of being accused of "name-calling" when I identify really bad behavior and call it out — like calling the Antifa marauders thugs and thieves, who burned private and public property and committed acts of wanton murder with impunity, and the applause and tacit approval of the hypocrites who bloviate about the dangerous J6ers who walked into the People's House waved in by Capitol police.

If these liars and hypocrites want to differentiate between the J6ers who actually committed acts of vandalism and the little old ladies who simply went into the building to PRAY for our nation — then we can begin having a conversation. Until then, I simply do not trust these people who call me names without pointing to what I did to deserve the name and who accuse me of calling them names when I point exactly what makes them a HYPOCRITE, white-washed graves full of dead men's bones: approving and covering for liars, thieves, and murderers.

And I am opposed to bullying homosexuals, too. And while I am against bullying homosexuals, I am also against anyone trying to sexualize minors—I'm against anyone denying to any human being their fundamental and natural rights.

I do not believe anyone has a right to decide their own gender—that's decided by nature and nature's GOD.

No one has the right to redefine marriage—GOD defined it as one man with one woman.

If some man wants to live with a man as if he is his wife, that's wrong, it's sinful, and I think they should be rebuked, and that behavior ought not to be accepted, condoned, or encouraged.

I also think it's wrong to promote pedophilia, bestiality, and adultery—any sexual promiscuity. It's dangerous, and unhealthy physically, emotionally, and spiritually.

I think these things are sin and should receive the reproof of the Holy Ghost through the rebuke of the Church — but with the exception of pedophilia and bestiality, I don't think we should stone these people.

But Melania, in my opinion, does not understand what she is doing by encouraging this behavior and lifestyle. By all means, call out bullying behavior, but by no means condone or encourage the deadly lifestyle of the homosexual.

If she thinks it's a “born that way” thing, she is woefully misinformed. If she thinks it's okay, she does not understand that lifestyle and how unhealthy it is.

If she is attempting to make it “okay to be gay,” her opinion is not informed by the Bible, so what informs it? Misguided sympathy.

I need to move toward a conclusion. Let's see! Look, ultimately: I'm telling you, we are finally going to have to form a CHRISTIAN Coalition for JUST Governance or something — what did Alexander Hamilton call his proposal to recruit and support godly Christian leadership, the Christians Constitutional Society? (See p. 312 in my book.)

Two issues are pushing our relationship with the Republican Party toward a divorce: abortion and acceptance of same-sex marriage.

These sorts of things develop over time. While the truth continues to get increasingly clear, and becomes more firm as it becomes clear. The lie always progresses toward weakness; it breaks down over time and finally collapses.

Many Christians were confused by the argument of choice, and identifying the baby as a fetus, and yet over time, TRUTH keeps shining its light and the LIES begin to lose their hold on the minds of free people, free to have access to the truth, and freedom of conscience to believe the truth when they see it, and to speak it freely with their neighbors.

It sometimes takes time for truth to catch up with the lie, but TRUTH IS MARCHING ON and NEVER LETS UP but continues until finally, TRUTH PREVAILS.

It seems all of a sudden, when it finally blossoms in the minds and hearts of enough people to turn the tide — it seems sudden but it's the product of sometimes years and decades of word of mouth, one heart waking up another heart — like the truth that the divine right of kings was bogus nonsense — the people right of consent, freedom of the soul, liberty of the conscience — it took quite a while before those truths finally conquered the lies that kept men slaves — abortion will loose because abortion is a LIE, and homosexual marriage will loose because it is a lie.

Life begins at conception—the flash of light signals the beginning of life and you cant' call that life anything else but human life — and as GOD communicated His likeness at creation, when man became a living soul, His likeness, and the rights attached to it are present at the moment life begins and it begins at conception.

To mark it as beginning any time after conception is a fools errand, for if there was no life before, there would be no life present at the place you decided it began

God defines gender, it's determined by nature and nature's GOD. It's one of those things you get from your CREATOR, like your inalienable rights — it's inalienable. No matter what you do to your body with hormones, or surgery, you are XX or XY — period!

Ask Carinni, who had to face a biological male pretending to be a woman in a boxing ring and got mugged by a punk.

If any man saw a woman getting beat by a man like that man who beat Carinni, and refuse to step in to her assist her, and take that puke down — I appreciate Mike Tyson's offer and would pay serious money to see that happen. I've got to go!

Hang on till Saturday night when we'll get together for the Brain Massage® LIVE 8 PM.

—> The Republican Aristos don't like us in their party — and when the wicked don't want you in their party, they connive and scheme and do all they can to “push you out.” Sometimes, the answer to that is to dig in and make them expose themselves. That is what has happened here.

But it can come to a place where we will have to separate —.]

Did Trump bully Rachel Scott at the notorious NABJ (National Association of Black Journalists) annual convention this past week? Did you see it? You need to see it and it's getting harder to find a full unedited version of the exchange. So I hope this link still gets you there.¹⁴ Let me check it! Nope! When I visited this link about an hour ago, I got the whole thing: Trump. introduced, taking his seat, and the full first question presented to him by Rachel Scott. Now, it starts with Trump's response. This removes his response from the context, and that's been their game with him all along. And this is what kills in show prep, because I want the whole thing — so I have to spend an hour scouring everywhere, and so i finally found it, almost, here's the link.¹⁵

It's been a while since I've offered a vax update — let's discuss the recent Czech Mate!
